Roster Bios for Event 6 - 9:50 AM Men's Senior Masters 8 (50+)

Cox: Adrian Ellison - World champ bronze x2 (M2+ 1981, M8 1989), Olympic gold (M4+ 1984)

Adrian Ellison was born on 11 September 1958 and is a retired English rowing cox. He coxed the men's four which brought Steve Redgrave his first Olympic gold in Los Angeles in 1984. He also won gold at the 1986 Commonwealth Games, again in the men's coxed fours. He was in the GBR team from 1981 to 93. He won World Championships bronze medals in 81 (M2+) and 89 (M8+), Olympic gold in 84 (M4+) and Commonwealth Games gold in 86 (M4+). He also won six Henley Royal Regatta medals, and four Lucerne gold medals in all 3 coxed boat classes. Adrian won the London Tideway Head of the River twice outright with women's crews, and twice with men's crews. More recently, he steered the basis of the HoCR women's' Masters crew to win the Masters category in March this year. Adrian attended Reading University and studied zoology. He coxed the woman's crews during his time there in the late 1970s.

The London radiologist, Adrian Ellison, of the Tyrian Boat Club was Britain's leading cox in the years leading up to the 1984 Olympic Games. In 1981 he won a bronze medal at the World Championships in the coxed pairs and he also took part in the next two World Championships, competing in the coxed fours in 1982 and the eights in 1983. At the 1984 Olympics he steered Britain to their first Olympic rowing gold medal for 36 years.

Magnus Burbanks – Member Molesey Boat Club

- Runner, Cyclist

Ian McNuff – GB International, Olympic Bronze 1980 Moscow – 4-

Ian T. McNuff (born March 10, 1957 in Ealing) is a British rower who competed in the 1980 Summer Olympics. In 1980 he was a crew member of the British boat which won the bronze medal in the coxless fours event.

Martin Cross – GB International, Olympic Gold 1984 Los Angeles – 4+; Bronze 1980 Moscow 4-

Martin Patrick Cross (born 19 July 1957) is a British oarsman. He won the gold medal in the coxed four at the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics with Steve Redgrave, Richard Budgett, Andy Holmes, and Adrian Ellison. Born in London, Cross was educated at Cardinal Vaughan Memorial School^[1] He studied at Queen Mary, University of London, rowing for the college boat club.^[2] Cross also won a gold medal in the coxed fours at the 1986 Commonwealth Games, silver medals in the coxless fours at the World Junior Championships in 1975 and in coxless pairs at the World Championships in 1985, and bronze medals in the coxless fours at the World Championships in 1978 and 1979 and the Olympics in 1980, and in the eight at the World Championships in 1991.

He has been described by his close friends as "An inspiration to not just the rowing world, but the whole of the sporting world."^[citation needed] Cross now lives with his wife, three children and two dogs in London. He published an autobiography, Olympic Obsession in 2001,^[3] and is currently working part-time as a history and politics teacher at Hampton School. He writes about rowing for The Guardian. Cross appears as a cameo in the 2004 romantic hit The Notebook. Although his work is uncredited, his character of "Rower" appears first in the credits list - something which co-star Ryan Gosling has described as "well-deserved." The Canadian once commented, "I could not expect to be credited above an Olympic gold medalist! It was such an honor to appear on the same list as Martin, and I'm pleased to be able to call him my friend." Coincidentally, Cross also taught Gosling how to row in order to ensure that the film's famous lake scene was authentic.

- Birthdate 2 Sep 1976
 - Height 188 cm
 - Weight 70 kg
 - Place of residence, Great Britain
 - I used to spend most my time outside the lab rowing for the Tideway Scullers School and Downing College. I represented Great Britain at the 1998,1999 and 2000 World Championships, winning a silver medal in the lightweight eight in 2000. I then went to the Sydney Olympics as spare man for the lightweight double scull, but ended up competing after Tim Male broke his wrist.
 - I retired from international rowing in 2001 after racing in the Lucerne World Championships. In 2002, I rowed for Downing, attempting to regain the Mays Headship.
